COMMENTS TO EDITOR: John, I request guidance on this essay. I really like it - it is very well-written, and makes a wonderful point about empathy and courtesy among healthcare professionals who hold differing opinions. My concern is that it is essentially an opinion piece: i.e., it is expressing the opinion (with which I very much agree) that we need to learn to work together and make compromises for the wellbeing of all. Do you see it differently? If you give me the green light, I will send it out for review gladly. But I am a bit concerned about setting a precedent that may haunt us later.
